DARE UTTER THOUGHTS

CLUB WOMEN MAY GOSSIP IF TALK IS NOT MALICIOUS.

Speech of the Woman Who Can Good Naturedly Criticise the Enraest Endeavor of Women, Inluding Herself.

The woman who did it is known in club circles. She has always had the reputation of making bright remarks, but this showed another side to her character-her courage. She said it in convention assem bled, too. What she said was this, in substance, though the quotation is not literal "We have done wonderful work as club women. We have done this, too, with a full appreciation of its weight and responsibility. But while our zeal has known no bound, our intensity has been that which is found in the greatest of human endeavor, we may perhaps have overlooked one principle of all well balanced action-equilibrlum. After club meetings, where our enthusiasm has worn us out discussing how to make home happy, we have been too tired to entertain our husbands in the evening. We have spent much valuable time and thought in the regulation of quite unessential matters. You know the Sorosis, of New York, that club which is the pattern for so many, and how it has been in the throes of discussion as to whether its pres-ident should be addressed as 'Mrs.' Miss' or 'Madame,' and whether the regularly prepared programme should be carried out excepting when distinguished visitors were excepting when distinguished visitors were present. In the discussion of the latter, you remember the matter became still more complicated when the question was raised. How can we tell when a visitor is really distinguished? We have forgotten simplicity, and it might well be said that our club aspect is as a veil of melancholy. Now I do not believe that along with this great work that we are dong it would be hurtful if we should get a little pleasure out of it. In closing I would even like to say that I think it is our duty, if we cannot be quite cheerful, to be as cheerful as we can.

The new programmes of the Magazine Club, of Columbia, announce that English history, English, literature and current events are to be the season's topics of study for this club. The first meeting was held last Tuesday, Miss James H. Gultar being the leader for the afternoon. Mrs. Frank Conley read a paper upon the "English Bluebeard"; Miss Mary Garth discussed "Perkin Warbeck"; Miss Martha Guitar about Cardinal Wolsey. The current events topic was introduced by Mrs. Guitar. At the next meeting of the club Mrs. Newton Hickman will be the leader. Mrs. Hubbell, Miss Lenoir and Mrs. Matthews are assigned topics.

The members of the Magazine Club are: Miss Mary Garth, Mrs. James H. Guitar, Mrs. Pinly O. Hubbell, Mrs. Charles Mathews, Mrs. Fred W. Niedermeyer, Mrs. Newton H. Hickman, Miss Lavinia Lenoir, Miss Laura Moss, Miss Sallie Pierce, Miss Emily Strawn and Mrs. Walter Williams.

Among the interesting work that is being done in the Athenaeum course is that of the extension class which holds meetings in Belmont chapel, at Pifth street and Belmont avenue, the second and fourth Fridays of every month. This work was undertaken last winter and succeeded to well that the class numbers among its members fourteen of the women of that neighborhood. A number of entertainments have been given, the proceeds from which were used for charitable purposes in that part of the city. The department hopes to establish soon an industrial school there for children, which shall be open Saturday mornings. The work has not progressed as much as it would otherwise have done owing to the prolonged illness of Mrs. E. H. Pheips. With the beginning of the new year it will be taken up again.

At the next meeting of the social ethics department, December 6, Dr. A. B. Peet will discuss the organization of charity work. Mrs. E. D. Hornbrook will speak about "Reseme Work." Miss Ellen D. Morris is chairman of the social ethics department. December is director. The regular meetings occur the first Wednesday of each month.

Already plans are being laid, and it is thought that quite a number of club women will cross the Atlantic for that occasion. Many a woman dresses to go out, feels irresolute, sits down, and falls into a fit of despondent musing. Ask her what's the matter, and she'll probably answer "just the blues." And what are the blues? Only another name, in general, for a disordered liver and a diseased termach. Cleanse the liver heal the stomach. Cleanse the liver, heal the stomach, purify the blood, and there'll be no more blues. It can be done by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. This medicine puts the dis-eased organs of digestion and nutrition into a condition of sound health. It eliminates from the blood all impure and poisonous substances, and cleanses the clogged liver. It contains neither al-cohol nor narcotics.

"I had liver complaint for the past fifteen years, complicated with dyspepsia and gall stones," writes Mrs. N. Bernier, of 48t Elm St., Oshkosh, Wis. "I doctored with seven of our prominent doctors, and not one or all of them have done me the good, nor begun to do what your medicines have. I have used three bottles of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, one vial of his 'Pierasant Pellets,' and one bottle of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, and have gained about eighteen pounds since I first began to take tuese remedica."

The woman reporter of women's clubs had her inning at the recent meeting of the state federation of clubs held at Rochester. On "press day" the discussions were conducted exclusively by women journalists, the chairman and every speaker being connected with some peaks again. nalists, the chairman and every speaker being connected with some newspaper in the state. Newspaper work as a field for women was talked over from numerous points of view, although it was generally agreed that there are excellent possibilities. Then the discussions switched to the reporting of women's club conventions and the meeting became quite interesting. Miss reporting of women's club conventions and the meeting became quite interesting. Miss Lilly R. Gracey, of the Rochester Post-Ex-press, spoke of the greater correctness with which these meetings are reported since that department of newspaper work has which these meetings are reported since that department of newspaper work has been turned over to women.

Newspaper accounts of women's clubs used to give the public the impression that a woman's meeting resembled a parliament of fowls. This has been much changed. When the woman's club became a settled and accepted fact the enterprising editor began to see and feel the need of a new department in newspaperdom, and go, ihe woman's page was established, with a woman editor in charge. Since then reports of women's interests have taken on a different type, and the daily newspaper is obsolete that does not regard the meetings of women's organizations as matters of news to be treated decorously.

To the woman editor, whose work has superseded the scissorings of the man compiler, and has prepared her page for intelligent rational beings, who are interested in the great religious, social and philanthropic movements of the day, is much of this change due.

The woman editor—not the scissor manknows that woman to-day touches life at many points end takes part in the many sided activities of the day.

Mrs. Belle MacKenzie, of the New York

Mrs. Belle MacKenzie, of the New York Evening Telegram, was brave enough to criticise a very common faffing of club women. She said:

"I only want to say a word to club members who object to a reporter taking a report of their meeting during the meeting, and the next day send around to the office a prepared affair and ask to have it put in the paper that day, which makes it two days late. Now, as a newspaper woman and club woman, I know of what I am saying. Those reports brought around in that way are not, candidly speaking, true reports, and again are stale news.

Reporters as a rule report meetings correctly, and their version of the affair will be generally accepted by the editor. Clubs who do not desire reports of their meetings have only to so notify the office if club women would more willingly give information it would more often be correctly reported.

At the next meeting of the social ethics department, December 6, Dr. A. B. Peet will discuss the organization of charity work. Mrs. E. D. Hornbrook will speak about "Rescape Work." Miss Ellen D. Morris is chairman of the social ethics department. Dr. A. B. Peet is director. The regular meetings occur the first Wednesday of each month.

At the merting to-morrow of the Magazine Coterie, Mrs. T. J. Meyers will read a paper upon the "Critical History of This Period." Mrs. D. S. Walker will discuss and a public building upon ground adjoining the park.

The first of the series of open meetings.

The first of the series of open meetings which the council of Jewish women contemplate giving will be held at the temple, corner Eleventh and McGee. at 2.39 tomorrow, when Rabbi H. Mayer, in response to a request which has been made of him, will give a talk upon Rev. Mr. Charles M. Sheldon's "In His Steps." The council extends to all club women of the city a hearty invitation to be present.

An excellent work is being done by this organization of club women. Its aim is educational, not only the improvement for individual members that comes from intellectual pursuits, but benefit for others as ucational, not only the improvement for individual members that comes from intellectual pursuits, but benefit for others as well, less fortunate in their opportunities for development. The study class of the council, which has always been concerned with Biblical topics, has taken up "Proverbs" for lesson topics this season. The class meets at the temple the first and third Mondays of the month. Rabbi Mayer is leader. The books of reference selected for this winter are the following:

"Literature of the Bible," R. G. Moulton; "Wisdom of Literature," appendix 2, table 4; "Introduction to the Study of the Bible," Book of Proverbs, S. R. Driver. Lange's "A Bible Commentary," Book of Proverbs, and Kent's "Wise Men to Israel."

The philanthropic work of the council supports a free kindergarten at 265 East Nineteenth street, the Ida Block Industrial school for girls, held every Sunday afternoon at the temple and free baths, which are open at 23 East Eleventh, on Wednesdays and Sundays. The attendance at the kindergarten number than usual at the beginning of the year. These are largely new children, also as the greater part of those who were in attendance last year have this winter entered the public schools. The kindergartner is Miss Daisy Newhouse, who is assisted by Miss Moreland.

The opening number is a song entitled the "Multiplication Table," which will be sung by the musical talent of the Cilo Club. Mrs. Mary McNell, of the Shakespeare Circle, will then read a composition upon the seasons, meaning probably summer autumn, spring and winter. Mrs. Elias Seammon will then recite that school room classic, "The Boy Stood on the Burning Deck," but the programme doesn't state whether this is the peanut version or the bona nde story. The debate, "Resolved, That fire is more destructive than water," will be argued for the affirmative by Miss Abbie Hogg and Mrs. Hamilton. Mrs. Millie Ford and Mrs. Foster will defend the negative. The exercises will close with an old-fashioned spelling match and the singing of a "round" by members of the Shakespeare Club.

Saw Trouble Ahead.

From the Herman Advertiser-Courier.

In the mountain district of Tennessee there are many people who never saw a train, and when a railroad was surveyed and constructed through a wild part of the state but little work was done by the natives for a year. They put in the greater part of their time watching the werkmen, but the greatest event of their lives was when the first train came along. Some of them were afraid of the eugine, and gave it a wide berth. The track was finally laid as far as the Cumberland river, and, owing to the delay in the arrival of the bridge material, the workmen crossed the river and began the construction of a tunnel. From the Herman Advertiser-Courier.

One day a tall, rawboned Tennessean stood watching the work. There was a puzzled look on his face, and he finally said; "They may be able to hit that hele every time, but if they miss it there will be h-ll to pay."

The man actually believed that no bridge would be built and the trains would make a flying leap across the river and dash into the tunnel on the other side.

It Seems Comfortable, Mrs. Hillson Says, to Feel That There Is No Longer Any Need to Worry for the Future.

twenty-five years ago; that's his picture weren in all the state. She has fallen heir to $5,000,000. She is the widow of the late George Hillson, who died several years ago. She is very modest in the possession of her new found fortune.

"It seems comfortable," she says diffidently, "to feel in one's declining years that there is no longer any need to worry for the future."

Mrs. Hillson, in spite of her many years, is remarkably vigorous both physically and mentally. She makes her home with her daughter. Until the present inheritance came to Mrs. Hillson, there was but little for her beyond hardship and privation, for both she and her daughter had to work hard for their mutual living. There never were any comforts or dainties or luxuries in their little homes, but when life seemed darkest to them the good news came.

There are about 150 heirs, but as Mrs. Hillson is in the direct succession from the original millionaire, her share is to be larger than that of many of the others.

Mrs. Hillson was born in Prince Edward island. She was married early in life and has seven children still alive. She is a motherly old woman and in spite of the years of constant, self-denial and poverty she imaintains a slight vivaciousness that one would scarcely expect. The fact that she is now a very rich woman has naturally cheered her to a considerable extent, but it has not created any appreciable ripple of excitement or induced her to make the slightest change in the daily methods of her life. "Doesn't it seem a pliy," I suggested, "that the money should have lain there all these years and you should have suffered for want of it?"

"No," said Mrs. Hillson quietly, "I would not have had it a day sooner. All things come in their proper time, so nothing happens out of place. I believe in this, you know, for it's part of my creed, I'm an Adventist. Do you know what that is?"

"Not exactly."

"Sat exactly."

"Sat exactly."

"Craclous!" exclaimed Mrs. Hillson with disappointment. "Then it's glad I am that the money's coming. It'll be a great help to enlighten people about the faith I believe in. Here are a few things the creed of the Adventists teaches: To believe in God: to believe in your neighbor: to trust him when he's dealing with you and treat him honestly when you're dealing with him: not to be envious, not to pretsand you are what you are not or have what you have not and be a living he, and to be contented. "No," was the simple response; "I have everything."

Mrs. Hillson smoothed her threadbare black gown with a pair of thin hands, grown rough and red and heavy-veined from years of housework and menial labor, and I looked around the room, with its whitewashed walls, its cheap prints, its faded furniture in imitation frames and cotton window curtains.

"Are you quite content?" I asked enviously.

Prom the New York Sun. "Speaking of strange coincidences," said the talkative man, "I ran across one this afternoon that I do not think has ever been duplicated. I was taking lunch in a downtown cafe to-day, and at the table next to me were seated four men. They were strangers to one another, but unde the spell of what the waiter had set before them were talking like old friends.
"By Jove" said one of them suddenly,

"I have had the same experience,' reurned the third man.

"'And I also,' said the fourth man.

"I fell from a hay mow,' said the first man.
"'So did I,' came from the three in one voice,
"'Gentlemen,' said the first speaker, 'it lacks but one thing to complete this strange coincidence. Upon my hirthday I always find myself unable to speak the truth. 'It is the same way with me,' promptly

DEATH DEFEATED

After Fourteen Years of Painful Suffering, From Lung Trouble, Mrs. Sabetha Ireland's Life Is Saved, and She Is Restored to Life, Health and Happiness.

READ HER STATEMENT MADE ON OATH.

Mrs. Sabetha Ireland, residing at 926 Wyoming street, Kansas City, Mo., 45 years of age, had for fourteen years been afflicted with lung trouble. She sends the following statement to Dr. Chas. Hume, which she makes on eath to emphasize its truth for the benefit of other sufferers.

Her Sworn Statement.

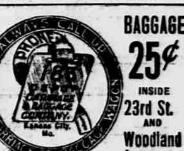

My name is Mrs. Sabetha Ireland. I live at 226 Wyoming street, Kansas City, Mo. I am 40 years old and for fourteen years have been a pronounced invalid. My trouble commenced with a cold which settled on my lungs. A bad cough followed, causing me to expectorate frothy mucus mixed with blood. I was terribly frightened when hemorrhage ensued, and almost panic stricken when a second attack followed. My strength failed me, and my health left me. I lost weight rapidly and weighed only 113 pounds, and looked like a skeleton. The night sweats were frightful. I was constantly feverish and the pains in my lungs were well nigh unendurable, and were constantly racking me with torture. I could not sleep and my appetite was lost. I had smothering spells, which when they came on almost choked me. It seemed to me I must die. I gave up ait hope, as I had tried a number of physicians and all kinds of patent medicines, and yet I grew worse and still worse. I was advised by friends to try Dr. Hume's treatment and the use at home of this London Steam Atomizer. I did so and to it I owe my life. Dr. Hume's treatment is positively wonderful in its effect. I began to improve rapidly and am now well. Four months have now passed and I have had no sign of hemorrhage returning. I have gained fifty-one pounds in weight. Can hold myself erect, my cough has ceased entirely: I sleep soundly all night: my appetite is good and I feel a new creature. I seem to have lost fourteen years of my life through not having received proper treatment earlier. I make this statement in the way I do to convince all who suffer that a remedy can be found. I shall be pleased to tell any who may be suffering of my satisfactory experience, if they will call upon me, and I will be pleased to answer any and every question those who live at a distance desire to ask me. I feel bound to help those who may be suffering as I did.
